

The Book Of Livvéd

Chapter 1

1 And in the beginning there was Livvéd, and He did dwell alone in the void and there was nothing excepting for Livvéd.

2 And Livvéd was very hot, and behold, all that He toucheth did melt and burst into flames, and even the rocks were consumed, and He manifested as a star in the firmament, and firmament was otherwise nothingness and void and the deepest black; and Livvéd gave His star the name Sun; and it was bad.

3 And Livvéd sought Satisfaction and Satisfaction was nowhere to be found; and so Livvéd took molten rock unto Himself and He fashioned an mighty sword from it, and He named the sword Darrok.

4 And Livvéd raised Darrok and swept Darrok across the firmament, and He spake thus: "Let there be stars;" and so He created stars, and they were hotter than molten rock and consumeth all that they touched.

5 And Livvéd was everywhere at one and the same time, and He was all seeing and He was omnipotent, and He lived in all the stars of the firmament all together and at one and the same time.

6 And there was no life excepting fire, and nothing that existed was good.

7 And Livvéd had not Motivation, and Satisfaction had deserted Him, and so He held Darrok in His two hands and spake thus: "There shalt be planets," and Darrok created planets, and the planets were hot, so that Livvéd could live within them, but the surfaces of the planets were unformed and cold and could support no life.

8 And Livvéd took Darrok and pointed to each and every star in the firmament and spake: "Go thou bodies to thine stars," and the planets arranged themselves around each and every star.

9 And Livvéd took Darrok in His hands and He divided the surfaces of the planets into water and land, and He created life, the fowl to fly in the air, and the fishes to swim in the depths, and the creatures to inhabit the lands; but they thrive not and all life perished, and the planets remained lifeless and barren.

10 And so it came to pass that Livvéd spake unto the planets: "Rotate," and the planets did revolve, and so the darkness and the light were divided, and the fowl that did fly in the air, and the fishes that did swim in the depths of the waters and the creatures that did inhabit the lands, they did all fornicate, and thrive and multiply; and Livvéd named these fertile changes the Day and the Night.

11 But the fowl in the air, and the fishes in the waters and the creatures on the lands found that this was good and they did multiply, and Livvéd was very vexed because it was good and nowhere was evil to be found, and so it went against and was opposed to His purposes and so threatened His very existences.

12 And so it also came to pass that Livvéd created an new life and that life could nowhere be seen but it was every where, it was in the air, and it was on the lands and it was in the depths; and these minuscule lives inculcated all the other life in order to live and made all the other life exceeding miserable unto death, and Livvéd was happy.

13 And the countlessness of life, both in the depths, and on the lands, and also on the heights, sought redemption, but no redemption was to be found, and so they desired a saviour and created beliefs of a superior being that could rule them and guide them for all their lives and in all their deaths; but there was no saviour.

Chapter 2

1 And so it came to pass that on the morning of the second day following the day on which Livvéd spoke to the planets and made them to revolve, Livvéd chose a single planet from the multitude and named it Earth, and it was an planet of the Sun.

2 And Livvéd resided within the Earth, and He did cause the land to quake, and He burst forth unto the surfaces of the Earth as volcanoes spewing molten rock and noxious gasses, and He did cause untold misery to all the lives that inhabited the Earth, even unto the minuscule, from thenceforth until the end of the universe.

3 And Livvéd created deities to rule in each and every air, and over each and every land, and under each and every water upon the Earth.

4 And above some of the lands in the South Livvéd did use Darrok to cut a swathe across the firmament that was like unto an rainbow, and He created a deity in the form of a snake that He nameth Serpent, and the Serpent created rivers on the land; and the Serpent was both merciful and wrathful at one and the same time.

5 And above some of the other lands in the South-East Livvéd pointed Darrok to the ground and created two deities, and He nameth them Vishnu and Lakshmi, and they were merciful and wrathful at one and the same time.

6 And Vishnu and Lakshmi did fornicate and begat in those lands three and thirty deities to serve under them; and They begat Mitra, and then They begat Varuna, and then They begat Śakra, and then They begat Dakṣa, and then They begat Aṃśa, and then They begat Aryaman, and then They begat Bhaga, and then They begat Vivasvat, and then They begat Tvāṣṭṛ, and then They begat Pūsan, and then They begat Dhāt, and then They begat Agni, and then They begat Nirriti, and then They begat Shambhu.

7 And then Vishnu and Lakshmi begat Aparajita, and then They begat Mrigavyadha, and then They begat Kapardi, and then They begat Dahana, and then They begat Khara, and then They begat Ahirabradhya, and then They begat Kapali, and then They begat Pingala, and then They begat Senani, and then They begat Agni, and then They begat Varuna, and then They begat Vāyu, and then They begat Dyaus, and then They begat Pṛthivī, and then They begat Sūrya, and then They begat Soma, and then They begat Samudra, and then They begat Nasatya, and then They begat Dasra.

8 And then Vishnu and Lakshmi did cease fornicating for they were satiated.

9 And on some other lands in the Middle-East Livvéd plunged Darrok into salty waters and created two gods Allah and Yahweh, who were tasked to rule over the peoples in those lands, and they were merciful and wrathful at one and the same time.

10 And above some of the lands in the North He pointed Darrok to a dark and lifeless part of the firmament and created God, and God was good, and God gave sustenance unto the fowl of the air, and the creatures of the land, and the fishes of the depths, and they worshipped God, and He was merciful and wrathful at one and the same time.

11 And the three and thirty sons and daughters of Vishnu and Lakshmi having no living creatures to dominate and control, they did spread unto all the lands of the Earth and sought solace in the lives that worshipped them.

12 And in some of the lands in the North-West Livvéd thrust Darrok's blade into an mountain and created a god that He called Jehovah, and Jehovah was witnessed by the lives in those lands and was merciful and wrathful at one and the same time.

13 And these one and forty gods, excepting Livvéd, did separately and together create creatures to live on the surfaces of the Earth that they called Man and Woman, to fornicate one with the other and multiply profusely, and it was good.

14 And all the fishes of the depths, and all the creatures on the land, and all the fowl of the air spake in one language and understood one with the other, and there was peace on the face of the Earth, and all lived without Sin.

15 But some men desired not to fornicate with women, and desireth only to copulate with other men. And some women did likewise desire not to fornicate with men, and desireth only to copulate with other women. And some men and women were mightily confused and distraught unto insanity and beset by doubts, and they considered that they were neither Man nor Woman and wanted to be known by other words.

16 And the one and forty gods, excepting Livvéd, were also confused and knew not how to counsel and treat with these men and these women and these others, and some cast them out, saying that they faced eternal damnation, and others welcomed them unto their bosoms, and there was a great uncertainty on the Earth and many peoples were depressed with their lots, and some of them taketh their own lives and resided in purgatory to await their fates.

17 But God was wrathful and not overly pleased, and God desired Serpent to make amends, and the Serpent did agree and entered Woman and made her Sinful and she, in her turn, allowed Man to enter her and made him Sinful; and so God was pleased because there was now fornication and corruption on the face of Earth, and there was a wailing and a gnashing of teeth.

18 And Livvéd also rejected the beneficence of these one and forty gods and commanded Man and Woman to die like unto all the other creatures that He had created and, when they had ceased to live in Sin, He transported them into the fiery depths of stars to exist in burning torment for all eternity.

19 And Livvéd created deities to oversee His commandments, and He created Kinie Ger in the South, and Asura in the South-East, and Satan in the North, and they presided over the three Hells into which all life would pass and so that all lives would suffer in the most profound torment for all eternity. And behold! There were four and forty gods excepting Livvéd.

20 But God was not well pleased and He created Heaven, and all those fowl of the air, and all those fishes of the depths, and all those creatures of the lands, and especially all those Men and Women who bowed down before Him and forsook their Sinful ways, were saved from eternal damnation and dwelt in Heaven and in everlasting bliss.

21 And amongst those that did worship Him, God selected the most righteous and most sinless and made them Saints and Angels, and the Saints and Angels went down from Heaven and spread the Word of Salvation and so turned many of the fowl of the air and many of the creatures of the lands and many of the fishes in the depths against Livvéd.

22 But the numerous living creatures of the lands and the numerous fowl of the air and the numerous fishes of the depths were of such vast numbers that many multitudes did die and they did consequently go to God's Heaven, and Heaven was inundated with a flood of the souls of those who had died.

23 And so God ordained and promulgated His will, and He cast out all the fowl of the air and He cast out all the creatures of the land excepting men and women without Sin, and He cast out all the fishes of the depths, and their spirits were sent to the various Hells of Kinie Ger, and of Asura, and of Satan.

24 And so it came to pass that they came under the command of the evil deities and resided in brimstone and ice for all their eternities.

25 And God did pleasure Himself, and He begat of Himself a deity and He gave the name Holy Ghost to that deity, and God commanded the Holy Ghost to go to the lands of the Middle-East, and He did give to the Holy Ghost such dispensation and avowal not invoceth the seventh commandment, and the Holy Ghost went thereon the lands of the Middle-East and fornicated with an woman, and so He maketh her an adulteress and He begat without wedlock a son for God, and that son was named Son of God.

26 And so it came to pass that there were six and forty gods.

27 And all the peoples who had prayed to God and unto whom He had bestowed His blessings and His wrath, and whom He saved when they were without Sin, and whom He cast into the fathomless pits of the Hells when they were sinful, and for ever there shalt be a wailing and a gnashing of teeth, were henceforth commanded to worship four deities, God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, and Satan.

28 And God commanded the most righteous and the most virtuous amongst His disciples to compose religious texts, and He dictated all and whatsoever should be written down so that these texts glorified God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit, and Satan, and He commanded that the scribes should make no mention of any other deities and make no mention of the one and supreme deity Livvéd; and thus it was so.

29 And all the other one and forty deities did likewise, and they created heavens and paradises and commanded religious texts be written by scribes that lauded Them above all other deities, and that made no mention of the one and supreme deity Livvéd.

30 And the peoples who worshipped the different gods wrote down their beliefs, some on stone, and some on papyrus, and some on paper, and some that were not written, but existed only in oral traditions, and these various texts did spell out the laws by which their devotees must abide or else suffer excruciating torment and die and live in perpetual misery in one of the three Hells created by Livvéd.

31 And the first commandment in all and every one of these texts was written thus: “Thou shalt not have other gods than Us and thou shalt not speak of Livvéd or otherwise thou shalt burn in Hell for perpetuity and all eternity”.

32 But Livvéd, who was omnipotent and knew all things that came to pass on Earth and in the various heavens and in the various paradises, and in the various hells and indeed in all the other places in the universe, gave unto the scribes delegated by the different deities to create these tracts, meeting places in which to do their work.

33 And He gave unto them food and drink to sustain them in their tasks; but He knew much of alchemy and of herbs and of other plants, and He adulterated the food and drink of the scribes so that they became delirious and wrote down their hallucinations and delusions in addition to the words that their gods required.

34 And so Livvéd spake thus: “In their lives after death there shalt be no rest for thine good and sinless.”

35 And in an heaven He decreed that every Man that was admitted shalt have eternal erections and must wed seventy-two women. And He caused Man and Woman to have an equal number of male and female children and so He had decreed that every Man that was admitted to that heaven should have seventy-one adulterous and bigamous relationships and so be transported to one of the three Hells and live for eternity in pain and misery without women to satisfy his eternal erections that were surpassingly uncomfortable, and in that heaven there was a wailing and a gnashing of teeth.

36 But Livvéd was both wrathful and merciful and He was merciful unto the extent that the men should not urinate and so kept their beards sweet for the women that they did bed.

37 And in an other heaven He decreed that every Man and every Woman should have neither books nor conversation nor libidinous feelings nor relationships, and so they did live for all eternity in utter boredom, and in that heaven there was a wailing and a gnashing of teeth;

38 But He was magnanimous and allowed these peoples to learn of philosophy and so they spent all their endless days in pointless meditation on the meaning of life.

39 And Livvéd similarly proclaimed punishments in all the other heavens and all the other paradises, and He made all the good and all the sinless amongst them desireth to Sin so that they might be transported to one of the various Hells ruled over by Kinie Ger, and Asura, and Satan and see out their perpetual existences in relative pleasure and peace.

40 And so it came to pass that the books of the five and forty deities, excluding Livvéd who was the one and only true god, some on stone, and some on papyrus, and some on paper, and some that were not written, but existed only in oral traditions, were surpassingly inscrutable and unintelligible to the peoples to whom they were addressed, and the peoples to whom they were addressed appointed high priests and lawyers to interpret them and rule over all the peoples as the missionaries and representatives of the deities on Earth.

41 And all the fowl of the air and all the creatures on the lands, and all the fishes in the depths spoke the same language and could understand one another and they lived in harmony, and Livvéd was not well pleased because all living things refused to speak His name and no animosity was anywhere to be found;

42 Excepting Man and Woman who lived in perpetual strife and Sin, but they also found that life was good because they learned to adulterate their foods and drinks and partook of the substances that Livvéd had created and they were full of joy and partook of fornication until death and their inevitable eternal misery in Hell.

Chapter 3

1 And on the morning of the third day following the day on which Livvéd spoke to the planets and made them to revolve, Livvéd ordained and decreed that all the fowl of the air and all the creatures on the lands and all the fishes in the depths shall speak many different languages and no longer understand one another, and He did this in order to create conflict, and He created their many different languages and He did create conflict for all of their days.

2 And He gave unto the peoples of the lands in the South a multitude of languages so that they fragmented into different groups and could not understand any of the other groups; but the peoples of the South were separated from all the other peoples who inhabited the Earth and they and their languages and their deities were unknown to all the other peoples and all the other deities.

3 And Livvéd gave unto the peoples of the South-East the one language that was Hindi, and the peoples met and made laws to worship the one and only Livvéd.

4 But the peoples in the South-East could not agree, some wanting to follow other deities and some wanting to follow false prophets, and they parted and separated into different groups.

5 And Livvéd created different deities for them to worship, and different languages for them to speak, and so it came to pass that the one peoples could not communicate with any of the other peoples, and they subdivided the land and went their separate ways; and Livvéd found it was good because it was bad.

6 And Livvéd, being aware that Man and Woman in the Middle-East were made in the likeness of God and so could not agree, neither in which gods to believe nor in what laws to follow, and He gave unto them Arabic and Hebrew to speak, and they could not comprehend one another, and lived in everlasting conflict.

7 And likewise Livvéd gave an multitude of languages unto the peoples of the North, and they did ridicule all those other peoples of the North who spoke in different languages to themselves and they did create hatred for all the other peoples, and so they created machines by which they could conduct wars and the lands of the North existed in perpetual turmoil.

8 And Livvéd gave unto to the peoples of the North-West who had migrated from the Northern lands an single language, and that language was named English, but they spake it in tongues and could not be comprehended by any of the other peoples on the Earth or each other; and they studied the arts of war and decreed that all the peoples shall bear arms and they lived in violence amongst themselves and independently from all the other peoples of the Earth.

9 And it was very bad and Livvéd praised the malevolence that He had created, and He needed not Angels nor Spirits to forment trouble, because all the peoples, excepting the peoples of the Southern lands, did fashion chariots of fire and chariots of the air that enabled them to wage war over ever increasing distances and with ever increasing savagery.

10 And the high priests representing the deities of the different peoples instilled an hatred of all the other peoples and their gods, and the high priests of some peoples who hated the other peoples with the same gods created new deities and new scriptures so that they might be different from the others and seek vengeance.

11 And so it came to pass that all the peoples with all the different religions and all the different languages did wage wars and massacre the peoples of all other religions and all other languages, and those unfortunate peoples who had no religion were immediately put to death by all and every other.

Chapter 4

1 And on the morning of the fourth day following the day on which Livvéd spoke to the planets and made them to revolve, Livvéd rested and admired His handiwork, and it was good because it was bad.

2 And so it came to pass that all the peoples on the Earth worshipped different gods and spake in different languages, and all the peoples on the Earth believed that their gods were the only true gods, and that their heavens were the only true heavens, and their Hells and purgatories were the only true Hells and purgatories, and their languages were the only perfect languages.

3 And the all peoples declared that all the other gods were false prophets and all the other languages were inferior, and the peoples who worshipped and spake them were deemed infidels and massacred whenever the opportunity presented unto them.

4 And behold, it came to pass that there were five books, and the books were given the names the Quran, the Bible, the Tanakh, the Sutras, and the Vedas; and these writings were obese in their wordiness and were surpassingly obscure, and could only be interpreted by the high priests that ruled their peoples.

5 And the high priests were the fonts of all wisdom and ruled their subjects with iron rods and the threat of living in perpetual hell; and thus it came to pass that the high priests usurped their gods and became more powerful than the gods whom they represented.

6 And often times the six and forty gods were wrathful and did arbitrarily seek out innocent people and condemn them to unjustified torment, and the high priests of all the gods had no explanation to give unto these people and all the high priests chanted thus: "Gods move in mysterious ways," and "Repent thine sins and thy gods will forgive you;" but there was no forgiveness for the people who were arbitrarily chosen.

7 And all the other peoples, who desired not to worship the six and forty gods, created new gods and produced oral and written scriptures that represented their beliefs, and they appointed high priests to interpret them, and they rejected the gods and high priests of all other religions and their high priests suffered their peoples to follow only them or suffer eternally in the burning Hells.

8 And so with the passing of innumerable years there were created innumerable spirits and gods to vie and compete with the six and forty true gods, and some of these, including Buddha and Confucius, were accepted by the high priests of other religions as worthy of respect.

9 And numerous spirits and gods were rejected by all the other peoples excepting the particular high priests of those spirits and gods and their particular adherents, and they were regarded as troubled souls requiring compassion and education to turn them from their dissolute ways and teach them to respect and revere some or all of the six and forty true gods, and so the peoples created camps into which the particular adherents were incarcerated and forced against their wills to conform.

10 And none of these peoples knew of Livvéd, who was the one and only one true God, and the peoples worshipped all other deities, and all other false gods and all other false prophets.

11 But Livvéd was omnipotent and all seeing, and His presence was felt by all peoples even though they did not know of Him; and He spoke unto them through volcanoes that spewed molten rocks and noxious gasses, and when He shrugged He causeth the Earth to quake; so that all the peoples were afraid, even though they did not know of Him and the causes of their woes, and they did shake with anxiety and doubt and did believe in hell.

12 And all these peoples rejected the gods worshipped by all other peoples, and so they raised armies to smite the infidels who worshipped false prophets and subjugate them and make them worship the only true gods, and henceforth pestilences covered all the lands of Earth.

13 But none succeeded in doing more than to make life on Earth a misery, and all the six and forty gods, and the innumerable gods created by the different peoples, and the innumerable false prophets flourished, and no one god held dominion over all, excepting Livvéd, who ruled all with a iron rod and Darrok in His hand to smite those that rejected Him.

14 And there was a wailing and a gnashing of teeth throughout all the lands of Earth and throughout all the heavens, and throughout all the paradises and throughout all the Hells, and indeed throughout all the universe that Livvéd had created.

Chapter 5

1 And whilst the scribes, who were tasked with writing down the books extolling their gods and false prophets and in the many different tongues, did write, they did look upwards to the skies, and lo and behold there was an blinding light and multitudinous roars of thunder and they fell onto their knees with their heads bowed and offered up prayers for salvation.

2 And Livvéd manifested as an Man before them, garbed in the purest white and with snow white hair and a girdle of pure gold and solid silver sandals, and He held in one hand the sword Darrok and in the other hand He had an parchment.

3 And Livvéd read from the parchment and spake thus: "Tremble ye from the highest hairs on thine heads unto to the farthest extremities of thine toes, because I task you with an onerous task, and if ye fail then eternal damnation awaits you."

4 Ye who art the true and faithful followers of all the true gods, and ye who art heretics and believe in false prophets, and ye who believe in no gods, shalt truly transcribe the histories and the genealogies and the biographies of the lands and the peoples who inhabit those lands, and ye shalt enumerate the generations that have passed before you unto the beginnings of the universe.

5 And what ye shall write, on parchment, or on paper, or on stone, or pass on by oral traditions, will be preserved for perpetuity and added to the religious tracts that the gods have ordained and that have been written down or passed on as oral traditions, by the scribes that have gone before you. And so you will create a faithful record of the lands in which ye live.

6 And ye will partake of the herbs and medicines that I shalt give unto you, and ye wilt have surpassing paranoias and hallucinations and embellish thine words with colourful exhortations of how the peoples must bow down and worship thine gods, and ye will include parables and other precepts and myths to glorify those that ye doth worship.

7 And ye shalt in particular write or transmit orally about what your gods want you to proscribe and the various punishments that your gods deem appropriate for those crimes, and your high priests shall employ lawyers to obfuscate and drive those that do sin into penury so that they must continue to sin and shall surely be consigned to an hell.

8 And I shall guide ye in your deliberations.

9 And the first law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt worship other gods as well as Me,” and the first penalty that ye shalt proscribe shall be that the sinners who fail to acknowledge Me shall be tortured very slowly until death by lowering them into boiling pitch and then they shalt be sent to an Hell for all eternity.

10 And the second law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt worship the graven images of thine gods,” and the penalty for having no graven images shalt be that he who fails shall eat the graven images of other gods and choke and die horribly and be transported unto an Hell for perpetuity.

11 And the third law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt remember and keep every fourth day as a day of worship to Me and you shall be merry and idolise Me and your graven images,” and the penalty that is proscribed for failing to observe every fourth day as the sabbath is that thou wilt forthwith and forever be required to be good and sinless and therefore thou shalt abhor all the days of your life and thou shalt alway desire to be sent to an Hell.

12 And the fourth law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt abuse thine mother and father, if you have the misfortune to know of them, and thine mother and thine father shall beat you constantly” and the penalty that is proscribed for knowing thy mother or thy father and not abusing them is that thou wilt spend all of your days in servility and live with them until they both do die.

13 And the fifth law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt kill one another when ever thou deemeth it necessary, and whenever thine high priests command you to kill one another,” and the penalty that is proscribed if you fail to kill others is that you shall be tortured, and you shall have your entrails cut out, and you shall eventually die in horrible agony, and then thou shalt spend the rest of your eternal days in an Hell.

14 And the sixth law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt when thou desireth an other person’s wife or husband seek all opportunities to copulate with her or him, and thou shalt fornicate whenever the opportunity and your manhood arises or your womanhood is libidinous,” and the penalty that is proscribed for being faithful is that thine wedded partner, on finding out that you are not attractive to other women or other men shall withhold conjugal rights from you until you die, and you shalt be forever incontinent.

15 And the seventh law that ye shalt write down shall be “When thou dost desire and want something belonging to an other, then thou shalt take it either by stealth or by force and without compensation,” and the penalty that is proscribed is that thou shalt live in perpetual despair because you cannot and do not have unto yourself all that you desire.

16 And the eighth law that ye shalt write down shall be “When thou hast a conflict with thine neighbour then thou shalt tell falsehoods and place all blame on your friends and those close to you, and thou shalt be envious of thine neighbours and all others that you meet, because their goods and houses shall be better than your goods and houses and their wives and husbands shall be far more beautiful and far more libidinous than you or your partner,” and the penalty that is proscribed for being content with thine lot is that thou shalt be ignored and thou shalt be the butt of many jokes and thou shalt consider thyself as insignificant.

17 And the ninth law that ye shalt write down shall be “High priests and ordinary men shalt abuse women, including their own wives, for their own libidinous pleasures, and they shalt make women slaves to do unto them all their bidding,” and the penalty that is proscribed is that I shall make you crippled in body and soul and you shall be impotent.

18 And the tenth law that ye shalt write down shall be “Thou shalt vilify and assault and destroy with impunity those that art of different colours to thou and of different appearances to you,” and the penalty that is proscribed is that I shall make you froward-skinned and of unacceptable sexual desires so that you shall suffer in perpetuity from the slings and arrows directed at you for all of your miserable lives.

19 But you, being enamoured of the herbs and having hallucinations from the medicines that I shall give unto you, shalt also write of the possibility of salvation, and you will write that if a person breaches these laws you shalt command them to kill themselves and if they follow your advice then they shalt go immediately to Hell and not suffer the torments that I proscribe.

20 And I Livvéd do grant to you the rights to promulgate as many other inscrutable laws and as many other arbitrary penalties that you shalt require your followers to abide by, and the followers of other gods shalt abide by different laws.

21 And accordingly I decree that you shall be in eternal conflict, and the high priests of all religions shall wage unending wars, against all others and even against themselves, and their high priests and their lawyers shall reap many and great benefits, and the dominions of the three Hells shalt be filled until they are overflowing with high priests.

22 And so the fowl of the air, and the creatures of the land, and the fishes of the depths, and the men and the women shall liveth in perpetual distress and have perpetual disagreements, and there shalt be nothing that is good.

Chapter 6

1 And so it came to pass that the peoples of the Earth could not comprehend their religious texts, and their high priests established institutions in which their scholars studied and interpreted the scriptures.

2 And because the high priests and their scholars desired much monies to interpret those texts, many charlatans established schools and they provided, for a few silver coins, simplistic explanations and proverbs to guide and instruct the peoples and so they were led to believe that if they abided by these old saws they might go to heaven after death.

3 And Livvéd was pleased, for He saw that the simplistic proverbs were simplistic texts that led simplistic people astray and into the hands of the devil, and all of the peoples, even unto the high priests, were simplistic.

4 And so He plied the scribes with the herbs that affect the mind and tutored the scribes and told them what should be written:

5 Woman is inferior to Man and leadeth him astray.

6 Wisdom is a woman and therefore cannot be trusted, and She perverts Man and ensures he lapses into ungodliness; and Wisdom shalt laugh at your calamity and will mock you when your fear cometh.

7 When Wisdom entereth into thine heart thou shalt know evil; shortness of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand is pauperism that thou shalt have to husband for ever and above all else.

8 All women are strange women and art adulteresses or prostitutes, and all wives are froward; for the lips of strange women drop as an honeycomb, and their mouths are smoother than oil, and they shalt give unto thee the pleasures that thou doth crave; let her breasts satisfy thee at all times, and be thou ravished always with her love.

9 An adulterer shall be forgiven his indiscretions for his wife is most assuredly an adulteress.

10 He that goeth into his neighbour's wife, and she that goeth with her neighbour's husband shall be deemed innocent of any sin.

11 Say unto Wisdom, "Thou art my sister", and call Understanding thy kinswoman, so that they will guide you to the strange woman and towards the stranger who, with the attire of an harlot and subtil of heart, flattereth with her words.

12 All must fear their gods, for their gods are wrathful and will smite down the sinless on a whim.

13 A man who desireth to sit beside his gods in heaven shalt be abstinent and spurn all male and female guiles, and all women, even if they be of impeccable virtue, shall not attain salvation.

14 Torment will go with you for all of your years and dissatisfaction shall be your handmaiden.

15 The man of integrity walketh surely, but women will take crooked paths and be found wanting.

16 He who concealeth his hatred shalt be vilified, and whoever spreads slander shall be respected.

17 The only people who comprehend the scriptures of their gods shall be the high priests who shall, for all eternity, be men.

18 The righteousness of the upright leads them to dissatisfaction, but the unfaithful have the pleasures of their desires.

19 A gossip shalt have the pleasure of betraying confidences and a trustworthy man shall suffer from perpetual frustration.

20 A kindhearted woman is not respected, but ruthless men are feted.

21 The gods abominate the man who hordeth grain and blesseth him who sells it at an extortionate profit.

22 A wife of noble character feedeth her husband's dissatisfaction, but a disgraceful wife giveth him pleasures and joys.

23 From the fruit of his lips a man shalt deceive others as surely as the work of his hands is found wanting.

24 A fool shows his annoyance at once, but a prudent man shall remember and exact much blood for ever after.

25 A truthful witness gives honest testimony and shall fail, but a false witness telleth lies and shall succeed.

26 Harm befalls the righteous and the wicked shall have less trouble.

27 Diligent hands will rule and they shalt employ slaves.

28 The slothful craveth and is rewarded with his heart's desires, but the diligent shalt be perpetually dissatisfied.

29 Misfortune pursues all, but prosperity is the reward of the sinner.

30 He who spareth the rod hateth his son, but he who loveth him is careful to thrash him daily like an fool.

31 All life is an abomination and all ways lead to death.

32 It is better to be poor and have true friends than to be rich and be surrounded by leeches.

33 The heart that discerneth seeks knowledge, but only folly is given unto him.

34 Say unto thy neighbour, “Go and come again, and on the morrow I will give;” and thou shalt be away from home on the morrow.

35 A prudent man concealeth knowledge; but the heart of the wise is froward and educates all.

36 The desire accomplished is sweet to the soul, but the abstinent shall pine for strange women.

37 The mouths of harlots and adulteresses are deep and volcanic pits leading to Livvéd, and he that is abhorred of his gods shall fall therein.

38 Happy is the man who is afraid, for he knows that his gods demand fear and obedience, and he shalt be crippled by anxiety.

39 A man shall love his gods and shall pray to them many times each and every day, but his gods shall ignore his supplications and exact penalties from him.

40 Wisdom is a woman and she grants unto women perception and perfection, whereas all men are strong, decisive and of impenetrable stupidity.

41 All men shalt be feted whenever they attempt to understand and fail ignobly, and whenever their irrational acts result in death they shalt be martyrs.

Chapter 7

1 And lo and behold, there followed innumerable generations of conflict, and all the peoples of Earth, separately and together, wanting dominion over all the other peoples of Earth, waged war against all others, and there was everlasting conflict.

2 And the fishes of the depths ate each other, and the fowl of the air ate one another, and the creatures of the lands ate each and an other, and the peoples on the lands killed each other and left the bodies to rot and putrefy as an omen to all others that might want to challenge their dominances, even though their dominances were fleeting.

3 But Livvéd was dissatisfied, and so He convened a meeting of the six and forty gods, including Himself, and He manifested Himself as an Man, and He sat on a throne of solid gold and rare diamonds, and with a bejewelled crown on His head, and the sword Darrok in his hands, and He faced His lieutenants and spake thus:

4 “And an messenger of God who was baptised as John saw a Revelation, and likewise many other sages were inspired by their gods and made revelations and predicted the futures of the peoples of the Earth. But these revelations were false prophesies and the terrors and torments and tortures that they predicted shall not come to pass.”

5 And so I, Livvéd, prophesise truly thus: That the future days on the Earth shall be ruled by the five rats, and the five rats will hold sway over all the gods and the demigods and the false prophets in all the lands of Earth, and they will bring five pestilences that will consume all the peoples of the Earth.

6 And I prophesise that on the first day of the pestilences the first and black rat will give unto all the peoples of the North a plague that will decimate the peoples and they will suffer pustules, and they will flagellate themselves and each other, every one of them, and all will be Sinful, and many, including many high priests, will die in misery.

7 And there shalt be a wailing and a gnashing of teeth, and the peoples shall confront their high priests and complain bitterly that their gods have deserted them, and they shalt kill the high priests for having failed them and they shalt resort to old wive’s tales and herbal remedies to halt their sicknesses, but they shall fail and die miserably and in excruciating pain anyways.

8 And one third of the peoples so afflicted shall die, and one third of the peoples so afflicted shalt murder an other third, and one third of the peoples so afflicted shall live in misery and penury.

9 But the remaining peoples shall be very libidinous and very fertile and they shall breed such as rabbits and repopulate the Earth.

10 And I prophesise that on the second day of the pestilences the second and black rat will give to all the peoples of all the lands black rocks, and the black rocks will be burnt and provide heat when heat will be required and the black rocks will be used transform metals, and it will come to pass that the transformed metals will enable the peoples of the Earth to manufacture towers and weapons so that they shalt dominate the other peoples who have only china and wood.

11 But the peoples who have only china and wood will learn the dark arts of the black rocks and, being godless, will come to dominate all others.

12 And one third of the remaining peoples shall inhale the black dust and die very slowly and in unfathomable pain, and one third of the remaining peoples shall pray to their gods and shall not be answered and they shalt have to work in mining the black rocks and die prematurely as the result of their forced labour, and one third of the remaining peoples shall lead blissful lives on their ill gotten gains from the black rocks, but they shalt be consigned to an Hell anyways when they die.

13 But the remaining peoples shall be very libidinous and very fertile and they shall breed such as rabbits and repopulate the Earth.

14 And I prophesise that on the third day that the sorcerers and the alchemists wilt conjure up all manner of alchemy and wage war against the minuscule lives that I have created to lead all peoples into misery, and the sorcerers and the alchemists will overcome the minuscule armies so that all men and all women shalt no longer suffer the pestilences brought by them.

15 But the third and green rat will learn these minuscule bearers of diseases to fornicate and mutate into many different forms, and so it will come to pass that the alchemy of the sorcerers shall fail and men and women shall die and suffer for all eternity.

16 And one third of the remaining peoples shalt succumb to their diseases for they shall not have enough gold coins to buy the remedies that the sorcerers and the alchemists peddled for their own gain, and one third of the remaining peoples shall pay the extortionate monies required by the sorcerers and the alchemists and die because the remedies shall fail, and one third of the remaining peoples shall survive only because their own bodies shall succeed in combating the minuscule, but they shalt live in a world wracked by strife and die in misery.

17 But the remaining peoples shall be very libidinous and very fertile and they shall breed such as rabbits and repopulate the Earth.

18 And I prophesise that on the fourth day that the fourth and yellow rat shall teach the sorcerers and the alchemists the arts of taking yellow rocks and converting them into terrible tools of destruction that shalt even be as powerful as My volcanoes and quakes, and all the peoples shall learn these dark arts and hold all the other peoples to ransom by the threat of destroying each and every other.

19 And there shall arise yellow-headed leaders and oracles, and they shall taunt others with their mighty powers and threaten the destruction of the Earth.

20 And one third of the remaining peoples shall die as a result of the accidental liberation of the demons that inhabit the yellow rocks, and one third of the remaining peoples shall die when men shall deliberately unleash the demons that inhabit the yellow rocks, and one third of the remaining peoples shall live in corrupted lands and shall die slowly from the invisible effects of the yellow rocks.

21 But the remaining peoples shall be very libidinous and very fertile and they shall breed such as rabbits and repopulate the Earth.

- 22 And I prophesise that on the fifth day that the fifth and white rat shalt signal the end of civilisation.
- 23 For I warn you that the excesses caused by the second and black rat and the failure of men and women to engage in the war against the third and green rat, and the impotence of men and women to tame the forth and yellow rat shall cause the Earth to become hotter, and the seas to rise, and the fresh drinking waters to dry up, and the fires to become the natural order.
- 24 And so I shall conquer all other gods and rule the universe by Myself, and all the peoples shall know of My heat and they shall hunger and despair.
- 25 And one third of the remaining peoples shall drown, or they shall burn, or they shall die of the famines caused by the failure of crops, and one third of the remaining peoples shall die when others kill them to take by force their goods and their women, and one third of the remaining peoples shall suffer from starvation having no land to grow crops or to husband animals, and they shalt live in misery for the few remaining days of their lives before they are consigned unto the various Hells that I have created for them.
- 26 But the remaining peoples shall be very libidinous and very fertile and they shall breed such as rabbits and repopulate the Earth.
- 27 But those remaining peoples shall inherit an Earth devoid of knowledge, for their forbears shalt have destroyed all books of knowledge other than the meaningless and irrational religious tracts.
- 28 And they shalt be devoid of sustenance, for the lands have been rendered infertile.
- 29 And they shalt revert to the lives and the superstitions and the beliefs of their first forbears and they shalt be beholden to false gods and false prophets.
- 30 But they shalt not prosper.
- 31 For the Earth will have been raped of all of its treasures and no longer will the Earth have the air to sustain the fowl, and no longer will the Earth have the waters to sustain the fishes, and no longer will the Earth have fertile lands to sustain creatures.
- 32 And the lands of the Earth will no longer have the wherewithal to support all the men and women that shalt come into being by the fornication of their elders.
- 33 And there shall be a wailing and a gnashing of teeth as the few remaining peoples come to understand that their gods have deserted them, and the promises of their gods of a life after death in the various heavens and paradises will prove to be chimeras and mirages offering no hope.
- 34 And there shall be a wailing and a gnashing of teeth as the last remaining peoples come to understand that the promises of their wrathful gods of a Hell after death shall not eventuate, and when they have seen out all the days of their lives on the Earth there shalt be nothing and only the blackest void.
- 35 And I, Livvéd, shall destroy all the true six and forty gods that I created, and I shall destroy all other gods and all other false prophets.
- 36 And I shall destroy all the heavens and paradises created by all the other gods, and I shall destroy all the Hells that I have created, and all the hells created by all other gods.
- 37 And I, Livvéd, shall cause the Sun to die, and all other stars to die, and I shall rule over a black void, and there shalt be nothing.
